Introduction

The 2004 National Annenberg Election Survey (NAES04) is one of the largest academic public opinion surveys ever conducted of the American electorate. Designed to track the dynamics of opinion over the 2004 presidential campaign, the NAES04 spans the 2004 primary and general elections, the two months following the election, and the week leading up to George W. Bush's second inauguration.

A total of 98,711 interviews were conducted by telephone, averaging 30 minutes each. Interviews covered a range of topics about the presidential campaign and politics generally, including opinions of candidates, knowledge and opinions of current policy debates, and media use. Voting and demographic information was also collected. The survey was updated regularly to stay current with the campaign, and questions were added, revised, and discontinued as campaign events and other developments warranted.

The main NAES04 study, the National Rolling Cross-Section, consists of 81,422 interviews conducted continuously from October 2003 through November 2004. On average, between 150 and 300 interviews were completed daily. Weeks or months of data can be used together for time-series analysis, or in many cases, individual days of data can be compared. A rolling cross-section methodology was used to minimize fluctuation in the day-to-day composition of respondents sampled for the survey.

During the New Hampshire primary election, the National Rolling Cross-Section was supplemented by a companion study focused on New Hampshire residents. In addition, some respondents who were interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the summer and fall of 2004 were re-contacted and interviewed again later in the campaign, to form pre-post panels around the conventions, general election debates, and the November election.

The size of the NAES04 permits in-depth analysis of sub-groups that typically are too small to analyze alone on surveys. For example, more than 1,300 military households were interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section between February and September 2004. These households were re-contacted in the weeks before the November election for a supplemental study of active service personnel and their families.

The NAES04 is a project of the Annenberg Public Policy Center (APPC) at the University of Pennsylvania, which designed and managed the survey. Phone work for the NAES04 was conducted under the direction of APPC by Schulman, Ronca & Bucuvalas, Inc., of New York; Ft. Myers, Florida; and West Long Branch, New Jersey.

The NAES04 is a companion to the 2000 National Annenberg Election Survey. The 2004 and 2000 NAES used similar methodologies and asked many of the same or comparable questions.

Using the NAES04 Codebooks and Data Files

NAES04 Studies

The NAES04 consists of eight studies, each a cross-sectional or panel telephone survey of a random sample of U.S. adults:

Rolling Cross-Section (RCS) Studies

- National Rolling Cross-Section
- New Hampshire (NH) Rolling Cross-Section

Panel Studies

- Democratic Convention Panel
- Republican Convention Panel
- Debates Panel
- General Election Panel

Supplemental Cross-Section (CS) Studies

- Military Cross-Section
- Inauguration Cross-Section

The table below and on the next page lists the sample sizes, descriptions, and interviewing dates for NAES04 studies.

Codebooks and Data Files on the CD-ROM

The NAES04 CD-ROM includes a codebook, SPSS data file, and ASCII data file for each study:

- The codebooks, which are PDF files, describe the variables measured and the data file structure. The codebook for the National Rolling Cross-Section also provides overview information and the survey methodology, which pertain to all studies.
- The SPSS data files are compatible with SPSS versions 7.5 and higher.
- The ASCII data files are tab-delimited text files and can be imported into a range of data analysis applications.

The table below and on the next page lists the codebooks and data files for NAES04 studies.

Identifying Variables of Interest—Panel Studies

Pre and Post Variables

Panel studies consist of two sets of variables:

- Pre variables, measured when the respondent was initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section
- Post variables, measured when the respondent was re-interviewed after a convention, the debates, or the general election

In the panel codebooks, corresponding pre and post variables are listed across from each other.

Question Wording

The detailed variable listing provides the full wording of questions asked on the survey.

Variation by Interviewing Date The wording of some questions changed as the survey was in progress:

- Substantive revisions in question wording are represented as separate variables. See ❶, diagram below.
- Some questions were adjusted as campaign periods or events passed. This is indicated in the detailed variable listing by braces in the question text. ❷, below

---

cCE35 Know if Bush or Kerry Favors Assault Weapons Ban (Wording #1) ❶

Schedule ▨ 4/19/04–7/7/04

Question 369 To the best of your knowledge, who favors extending the federal law banning assault weapons—George W. Bush, John Kerry, both, or neither?

See also cCE37.

Schedule ▨ 7/8/04–11/3/04

Question 370 To the best of your knowledge, {7/8/04–11/1/04: who urges | 11/3/04: during the presidential campaign, who urged} ❷ Congress to extend the federal law banning assault weapons—George W. Bush, John Kerry, both, or neither?

See also cCE35.

Response and Other Value Options

The detailed variable listing enumerates the response and other value options recorded for each variable.

Response Options Read to the Respondent Response options read to the respondent are included as part of the question text ❸, below. Additional response options were accepted if volunteered ❹.

Question 349 Who do you trust to do a better job handling the economy—George W. Bush or John Kerry? ❸

❺

1	Bush
2	Kerry
3	Trust both the same
4	Trust neither
998	Don’t know
999	Refused

❹

Coded Data Every variable has coded data representing a value category ❺, above, or a numeric quantity ❻, below.

---

cFD07 Number of Phone Calls From Democratic Campaign

Schedule ▨ 1/16/04–3/9/04

Question 272 About how many telephone messages from the Democratic campaigns did you get?

❻ Number	0–97
998	Don’t know
999	Refused

For most variables, 998 denotes that the respondent answered “don’t know,” and 999 denotes that the respondent declined to answer.

Multi-Part Coded Data Some variables have multi-part coded data, meaning that more than one coded value may be recorded per respondent.

The detailed variable listing identifies variables with multi-part coded data, and indicates the maximum number of coded values per respondent. See ❶, diagram below.

cFD09* Reminded to Vote

Schedule ▨
11/1/04–11/16/04

Question 290 Has any political party, or other group or individual come to your house to remind you to vote on Nov. 2?

❶ * Multi-Part Data: Up to three "yes" answers in cFD09.1–cFD09.3

1	Yes, party
2	Individual
3	Other group
4	No
998	Don't know
999	Refused

Verbatim Data In some cases, respondents' verbatim responses are recorded.

The detailed variable listing identifies variables with verbatim data, and indicates the coded value that denotes a verbatim response was recorded. ❷, below

---

cFD10* Reminded to Vote by Republicans or Democrats

Schedule ▨

Data File Layout The data file layout section of the codebooks summarizes the data file columns for each study. The data file layout indicates column positions and whether columns contain numeric data or text data up to a maximum number of characters. See diagram above.

Filters and Sample Splits

Filters Some variables have filters, meaning they were measured only for respondents who answered questions in particular ways or lived in certain states.

The detailed variable listing identifies variables with filters and describes the filter criteria. See ①, diagram this page.

Sample Splits Many variables have sample splits and were limited to random sub-samples of respondents.

The detailed variable listing identifies variables with sample splits, and indicates the size and definition of the sub-sample. ②

Variation by Interviewing Date The detailed variable listing indicates filters and sample splits that vary by interviewing date. ③

Question 135 Some people say that the continuing deaths of American troops in Iraq and the cost in dollars outweigh the benefits. Considering that, are you sure the situation was worth going to war over, or are you uncertain about it?

1	Sure was worth it
2	Uncertain
3	Not worth it
998	Don’t know
999	Refused

② Sample Split 1/2 sample
cXA = 1

cXA Random Assignment to Question Module A1 or A2

Schedule ▨ All dates

Throughout the survey, some variables were measured only for respondents randomly assigned to particular question modules. cXA indicates random assignment to question module A1 or A2.

See also cXB–cXC. See the sample split summary for a listing of variables affected by question modules and other sample splits.

1	Question module A1
2	Question module A2

Question Order

The questionnaire section of the codebooks provides the interviewing script read to respondents. The questionnaire indicates:

- The order in which questions were asked
- List-format questions
- Random order

The questionnaire also provides the introduction used to greet households and select respondents.

Question Order Questions are numbered sequentially, which indicates the order in which they were asked. See ❶, diagram this page.

The detailed variable listing and questionnaire cross-reference each other. ❷

List Format Questions In many cases, questions with similar wording were asked in a list format.

List-format questions are indicated in the questionnaire with tree lines. The common wording is indicated at the top of the tree, and branching lines identify wording specific to each question. ❸

Random Order The questionnaire indicates series of questions ❹ and response options ❺ read in random order. Questions marked in parentheses were read in sequence within the series.

In some cases, random orders are recorded in the data files. See variable categories AX and RX.

Overview of Survey Content

Variable Subject Categories

NAES04 variables are organized into subject categories. The tables below and on pages 22–34 provide an overview of subject categories and sub-categories.

In some cases, category letters skip sequence so that the 2004 NAES is compatible with 2000; see page 35.

Survey Methodology

National Rolling Cross-Section

Sample Size, Description, and Interviewing Dates

- Sample 81,422 randomly selected U.S. adult residents interviewed during the 2004 presidential campaign
- Interviewing Dates Oct. 7, 2003–Nov. 16, 2004

Sampling Procedures

Respondents were sampled for the National Rolling Cross-Section using the following random-digit dialing procedures.

Random Phone List A list of 10-digit U.S. telephone numbers was randomly generated by Survey Sampling, Inc., of Westport, Connecticut, inclusive of the 48 continental states and Washington, DC.:

- The first eight digits of phone numbers were randomly generated proportional to estimates of the percentage of household phones beginning with those digits.
- The last two digits were generated entirely at random.
- Known cell phone numbers were excluded, as required by U.S. government regulations.

Household Identification Interviewers called the random phone list to identify numbers that were households. When interviewers determined that a number was not a household or was out of service, the number was removed from the study.

Respondent Selection Upon reaching a household, interviewers asked to speak with an adult age 18 or older, and then asked this person to indicate the number of adults living in the household. One adult per household was selected as a survey respondent:

- If there was one adult in the household, he or she was selected as the survey respondent.
- If there were two adults in the household, interviewers asked for either the younger or older adult.
- If there were three adults, interviewers asked for the youngest, middle, or oldest adult.
- If there were four adults, interviewers asked for either the adult who most recently celebrated a birthday, or the adult with the next birthday.
- The household was ineligible for the survey if there were no adults.

See the questionnaire for the sequence of questions used to select respondents.

Interview Language Interviews were conducted in English or Spanish at the respondent's preference. Variable cYA04 indicates the interview language.

Phone Procedures

Interviewers called phone numbers multiple times to identify households, select respondents, and complete interviews for the National Rolling Cross-Section.

Calling Schedule Randomly generated phone numbers were added to the study in daily batches, at a ratio of nine numbers to one completed interview. Repeat calls were made as necessary, up to a maximum of 18 total calls over 14 days:

- In many cases, calling a number resulted in no answer, a busy signal, or the call being forwarded to an answering machine. In these cases, the number was scheduled to be called again no later than the next day.
- In other cases, households asked to be called back at another time. Interviewers accommodated requests to call at specific times, or called back within the next few days if no time was specified.

- Most calls were made on weekday evenings and weekends. Interviewers also made calls during the day on weekdays.
- After a number was called 18 times over 14 days, no additional calls were made to that number.

Refusals and Break-Offs If a household refused to participate in the survey, interviewers called back a few days later to try to elicit participation:

- If a household refused during the first six days of calling to the number, generally the next call was made four days later.
- If a household refused on days 7–9, the next call was made on day 10.
- If a household refused on days 10–13, it was called the next day.
- Households that refused on day 14 were called again the same day.

If a respondent started and broke off an interview, he or she was called back to restart and finish the interview. Generally, repeat calls were made within one day of the break-off.

Holidays Interviews were conducted daily, except on the following holidays:

- Nov. 27, 2003, Thanksgiving
- Dec. 24–25, 2003, Christmas
- Dec. 31, 2003–Jan. 1, 2004, New Year's
- April 11, 2004, Easter
- July 4, 2004, Independence Day
- Nov. 2, 2004, Election Day

Daily Interviewing

The number of National Rolling Cross-Section interviews completed per day varied from 60 to 500, depending on the campaign period. The highest interviewing volumes were allocated for the general election, followed by the conventions and primary periods. In addition, interviewing levels were adjusted as unanticipated campaign developments warranted.

During most of the National Rolling Cross-Section, an average of between 150 and 300 interviews were completed daily:

Month	Total Interviews	Daily Average
October 2003	1,536	61
November	4,682	161

A. Eligible households	322,443
B. Completed interviews	81,422
C. Households that started and broke off interviews	16,104
D. Households that did not begin interviews	224,917
E. Refused to participate	53,861
F. Unavailable when called (includes health problems or language barrier)	171,056
G. Ineligible households (no adult 18 or older)	1,377
H. Non-household or out-of service numbers	384,639
J. Numbers of unknown status (no answer or busy signal all attempts)	52,630

Response rate is the ratio of completed interviews to total households called. A conservative approach is to assume that the total number of households includes both those of known eligibility (A, table above) and those of unknown status (J); using this method, the response rate for the National Rolling Cross-Section is 22% [B / (A + J)]. A less conservative approach is to include only households of known eligibility; using this method, the response rate is 25% (B / A).

New Hampshire Rolling Cross-Section

Sample Size, Description, and Interviewing Dates

- Sample 3,454 randomly selected adult residents of New Hampshire interviewed during the final three weeks of the state's primary or the week after the primary
- Interviewing Dates Jan. 8–Feb. 3, 2004 (The New Hampshire primary was Jan. 27.)

Sampling and Phone Procedures

The New Hampshire Rolling Cross-Section used the same sampling and phone procedures as the National Rolling Cross-Section (see pages 39–40), except that the random phone list was limited to New Hampshire numbers.

Response Rate

The following table shows the outcome of calls made for the New Hampshire Rolling Cross-Section:

Total telephone numbers called for the New Hampshire Rolling Cross-Section	30,626
A. Eligible households	12,481
B. Completed interviews	3,454
C. Households that started and broke off interviews	591
D. Households that did not begin interviews	8,436
E. Refused to participate	2,721
F. Unavailable when called (includes health problems or language barrier)	5,715
G. Ineligible households (no adult 18 or older)	56
H. Non-household or out-of service numbers	16,232
J. Numbers of unknown status (no answer or busy signal all attempts)	1,857

Response rate is the ratio of completed interviews to total households called. A conservative approach is to assume that the total number of households includes both those of known eligibility (A, table above) and those of unknown status (J); using this method, the response rate for the New Hampshire Rolling Cross-Section is 24% [B / (A + J)]. A less conservative approach is to include only households of known eligibility; using this method, the response rate is 28% (B / A).

Democratic Convention, Republican Convention, and Debates Panels

Sample Sizes, Descriptions, and Interviewing Dates

Democratic Convention Panel

- Sample 1,016 adults initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the 10 days before the Democratic presidential nominating convention, and re-interviewed during the 10 days after the convention
- Interviewing Dates
  Pre-convention: July 16–25, 2004
  Post-convention: July 30–Aug. 8, 2004
  (The convention was July 26–29.)

Republican Convention Panel

- Sample 1,049 adults initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the 10 days before the Republican presidential nominating convention, and re-interviewed during the 11 days after the convention
- Interviewing Dates
  Pre-convention: Aug. 20–29, 2004
  Post-convention: Sept. 3–13, 2004
  (The convention was Aug. 30–Sept. 2.)

Debates Panel

- Sample 1,248 adults initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the 10 days before the first general election presidential debate, and re-interviewed during the 11 days after the last debate
- Interviewing Dates
  Pre-debates: Sept. 20–29, 2004
  Post-debates: Oct. 14–24, 2004
  (The first debate was Sept. 30, and the last debate was Oct. 13.)

Sampling Procedures

The Democratic Convention, Republican Convention, and Debates panel studies consist of re-interviews with respondents initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section. Respondents' initial interviews for the National Rolling Cross-Section count as pre interviews for the panels.

Interviewers attempted to re-contact all respondents interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the 10 days before the conventions or debates, excluding respondents from active military households:

- Democratic Convention Panel Of the 2,514 respondents interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section 10 days before the Democratic convention, 2,443 (97%) were not from active military households and were called for the panel. Re-interviews were completed with 1,016 respondents.
- Republican Convention Panel Of the 2,960 respondents interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section 10 days before the Republican convention, 2,879 (97%) were not from active military households and were called for the panel. Re-interviews were completed with 1,049 respondents.
- Debates Panel Of the 3,102 respondents interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section 10 days before the first general election debate, 3,013 (97%) were not from active military households and were called for the panel. Re-interviews were completed with 1,248 respondents.

See the questionnaires for the sequence of questions used to re-contact respondents for panel studies.

Military Households Active military households were excluded from the convention and debates panels because these households were used for the Military Cross-Section study (see page 45).

Phone Procedures

Interviewers made multiple calls to complete re-interviews for the panels, up to a maximum of 18 calls over the 10- or 11-day re-interview period. Interviewers accommodated requests to call at specific times, and called back after initial refusals and break-offs, as in the National Rolling Cross-Section (see pages 39–40).

Interview Language Re-interviews were conducted in English or Spanish at the respondent's preference. Variable rYA04 indicates the re-interview language.

Response Rates

- Democratic Convention Panel Re-interviews were completed with 1,016 of 2,443 respondents called for the panel, a 42% response rate.
- Republican Convention Panel Re-interviews were completed with 1,049 of 2,879 respondents called for the panel, a 36% response rate.
- Debates Panel Re-interviews were completed with 1,248 of 3,013 respondents called for the panel, a 41% response rate.

General Election Panel

Sample Size, Description, and Interviewing Dates

- Sample 8,664 adults initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the 15 weeks before the general election, and re-interviewed in the eight weeks after the election
- Interviewing Dates
  Pre-election: July 15–Nov. 1, 2004
  Post-election: Nov. 4–Dec. 28, 2004
  (The election was Nov. 2.)

Sampling Procedures

The General Election Panel consists of re-interviews with respondents initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section. Respondents' initial interviews for the National Rolling Cross-Section count as pre interviews for the panel.

Interviewers attempted to re-contact a random selection of 20,000 of the 34,062 respondents interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during the 15 weeks before the general election. This included respondents from active military households. Re-interviews were completed with 8,664 respondents.

See the questionnaires for the sequence of questions used to re-contact respondents for panel studies.

Phone Procedures

The General Election Panel used similar phone procedures as the National Rolling Cross-Section. Over the first 40 days of the study, interviewers began re-contacting a random batch of 500 respondents daily. Repeat calls were made as necessary, up to a maximum of 18 total calls over 14 days. Repeat calls were scheduled in the same way as for the National Rolling Cross-Section, including call-backs after refusals and break-offs (see pages 39–40).

Interview Language Re-interviews were conducted in English or Spanish at the respondent's preference. Variable rYA04 indicates the re-interview language.

Holidays Interviews were conducted daily, except on the following holidays:

- Nov. 24–25, 2004, Thanksgiving
- Dec. 24–25, 2004, Christmas

Response Rate

Re-interviews were completed with 8,664 of 20,000 respondents called for the General Election Panel, a 43% response rate.

Military Cross-Section

Sample Size, Description, and Interviewing Dates

- Sample 656 randomly selected members of active U.S. military households, including 372 active service personnel, and 284 family members of active service personnel
- Interviewing Dates Sept. 22–Oct. 5, 2004

Sampling Procedures

The sample for the Military Cross-Section was developed by re-contacting military households interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section.

From Feb. 13–Sept. 29, 2004, 1,396 National Rolling Cross-Section respondents indicated that they or another member of their household currently served in the U.S. military (representing approximately 3% of households interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section during this period). These 1,396 military households were re-contacted for the Military Cross-Section, and interviews were completed with 656 respondents:

- Active Service Members Upon re-contacting a military household, interviewers first asked for the active service member. Interviews were completed with 372 service members (constituting 57% of the study sample). Of these service members, 224 (60%) were initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section.
- Family Members If the service member was unavailable, interviewers attempted to interview another adult in the household. If a family member was initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section, interviewers asked to speak with this person first. Interviews were completed with 284 family members (constituting 43% of the study sample), of which 234 (82%) were interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section.

See the questionnaire for the sequence of questions used to select respondents. See the National Rolling Cross-Section questionnaire for the sequence of questions used to determine household military status.

Phone Procedures

Interviewers made multiple calls to complete interviews at military households, up to a maximum of 18 calls over the study period. Interviewers accommodated requests to call at specific times, and called back after initial refusals and break-offs, as in the National Rolling Cross-Section (see pages 39–40).

Interview Language Interviews were conducted in English or Spanish at the respondent's preference. Variable cYA04 indicates the interview language.

Response Rates

Interviews were completed with 656 of 1,396 respondents called for the Military Cross-Section, a 47% response rate.

Inauguration Cross-Section

Sample Size, Description, and Interviewing Dates

- Sample 1,202 randomly selected U.S adult residents interviewed in the week before George W. Bush's second inauguration
- Interviewing Dates Jan. 11–16, 2005 (The inauguration was Jan. 20.)

Sampling Procedures

The Inauguration Cross-Section used the same random-digit sampling procedures as the National Rolling Cross-Section (see page 39).

Phone Procedures

Interviewers made multiple calls to identify households, select respondents, and complete interviews for the Inauguration Cross-Section. A maximum of 10 calls were made to each number over the study period. Interviewers accommodated requests to call at specific times, and called back after initial refusals and break-offs, as in the National Rolling Cross-Section (see pages 39–40).

Interview Language Interviews were conducted in English or Spanish at the respondent's preference. Variable cYA04 indicates the interview language.

Response Rate

The following table shows the outcome of calls made for the Inauguration Cross-Section:

Total telephone numbers called for the Inauguration Cross-Section	12,960
A. Eligible households	5,354
B. Completed interviews	1,202
C. Households that started and broke off interviews	158
D. Households that did not begin interviews	3,994
E. Refused to participate	759
F. Unavailable when called (includes health problems or language barrier)	3,235
G. Ineligible households (no adult 18 or older)	15
H. Non-household or out-of service numbers	6,482
J. Numbers of unknown status (no answer or busy signal all attempts)	1,109

Response rate is the ratio of completed interviews to total households called. A conservative approach is to assume that the total number of households includes both those of known eligibility (A, table above) and those of unknown status (J); using this method, the response rate for the Inauguration Cross-Section is 19% [B / (A + J)]. A less conservative approach is to include only households of known eligibility; using this method, the response rate is 22% (B / A).

Multiple Re-Interviews

Some respondents were interviewed for three NAES04 studies:

- National, Democratic Convention, and General Election Studies 333 respondents were initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section July 16–25, 2004, and re-interviewed for both the Democratic Convention Panel July 30–Aug. 8, and the General Election Panel Nov. 4–Dec. 28.
- National, Republican Convention, and General Election Studies 376 respondents were initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section Aug. 20–29, 2004, and re-interviewed for both the Republican Convention Panel Sept. 3–13, and the General Election Panel Nov. 4–Dec. 28.
- National, Debates, and General Election Studies 456 respondents were initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section Sept. 20–29, 2004, and re-interviewed for both the Debates Panel Oct. 14–24, and the General Election Panel Nov. 4–Dec. 28.
- National, Military, and General Election Studies 74 respondents were initially interviewed for the National Rolling Cross-Section July 15–Sept. 29, 2004, and re-interviewed for both the Military Cross-Section Sept. 22–Oct. 5, 2004, and the General Election Panel Nov. 4–Dec. 28, 2004.

Respondents are identified across NAES04 studies by the variable cKEY.

Weighting

The NAES04 data are distributed unweighted. For analysts who wish to construct their own weights, below are 2004 U.S. population parameters from the Bureau of the Census:

cCD67 Patriot Act Is Good for Country

Schedule

10/30/03–9/19/04

Question 42 After the terrorist attacks of 9/11, Congress passed the USA Patriot Act, which gives federal officials wider authority to use wiretaps and other surveillance techniques. Some people say the Patriot Act is a good thing because it provides necessary new and effective tools for preventing terrorist attacks, while others say the act is a bad thing because it gives the Justice Department and the FBI too much power to spy on ordinary Americans. Which comes closer to your view—would you say the Patriot Act is a good thing for America or a bad thing for America?

Question 837 Variable cWF16

Ask Q837 only on 2/13/04–11/16/04.

If you have a cell phone, is your cell phone number different from your landline or home phone, or is it the same number?

1	Different
2	Same
3	Do not have cell phone
998	Don’t know
999	Refused

For verification purposes, could you please tell me your first name?

That completes the survey. Thank you for participating. We really appreciate your time. Have a good (day/evening).
